LOW DRIVE

Steve Jones - vocals, guitar.
Greg Sheffield - bass, vocals, keys.
Tim Bowes - drums.

Going effortlessly between powerful, full-on, rock to mellow, chilled-out guitar-driven pop is a rare talent in music today, and this is something that Lowdrive has had no problems mastering. With a sound that defies the fact they are, indeed, only a 3-piece, you are never entirely sure where each of their songs will take you, but it's the experience of each one of their songs that you will come to fully appreciate these Coventry natives.

Each of Lowdrive's tracks is laced with their signature intricate vocal harmonies, powerful guitar riffs, unconventional, yet highly effective drumming and a sweltering bass that draw wisdom and inspiration from Coldplay and Feeder without losing their own, unique, sound that has set them apart from so many other their carbon-copied, emotionally inert counterparts.

With an amazing ability to enthrall and captivate an audience with their commanding and memorable style, they are able to casually fire out some of the finest, infectious pop-rock songs you are ever likely to hear, and when the mood strikes, they can bring things down to a more serene level, without losing their powerful sound that audiences all across the UK are coming to crave.

Lowdrive's sound owes as much to each member's very diverse tastes and previous experience in the music industry, as it does to bands like Muse, Placebo, Idlewild, Foo Fighters, The Doves and Radiohead - all of who the band are more than happy to name as influential in the sound that they have come to define. The new double A-Side single, "Love Will Come/Something New" is the band at their best, and if this is any indication to come, it won't be long before Lowdrive will be on everyone's musical radar.
